

How to teach
your dog...

NOT to Come When Called

Dogs are always learning, even when you don't know you're teaching them.

- Call them when you're not 100% sure they will come to you.
- Don't tell them what you want them to do. Just keep saying their name.
- Keep repeating the cue and give no other information.
- Call them and don't give them a reward.
- Scold or punish them when they finally come to you if it took too long.
- Call them and make them do something they don't like.
- Be as boring as possible.
- End their playtime at the park or in the yard.
- Let them escape the home or yard frequently and find fun things to do!

Dogs do what works to
GET good things and
AVOID bad things.

To teach your dog to NOT come to you, make it something they want to AVOID.

How to teach
your dog...

TO Come When Called

Dogs are always learning, even when you don't know you're teaching them.

- Teach the cue on a leash with low distractions to build muscle memory.
- Give a clear cue and only say it one time.
- Don't say it if you're not sure it will happen or you can make it happen.
- Help your dog by moving away from them if they don't understand.
- Always reward generously when they come to you.
- Don't call them and make them do something they don't like. Go get them with a leash instead.
- Be as exciting as your dog finds rewarding.
- Manage the environment so they can't get away and be rewarded for not coming back.

Dogs do what works to
GET good things and
AVOID bad things.

To teach your dog to always come to you, make it something they want to GET.